

Ivie Named Honorary Professor of Rhetoric by University of Copenhagen

Professor Robert Ivie has been appointed by the University of Copenhagen to serve for five years (August 2010- August 2015) as "Honorary Professor in Rhetoric." This title is awarded to academics with distinguished careers and helps to establish stronger ties between the professor and University of Copenhagen.

Professor Ivie will be giving a series of presentations in November 2010 in Copenhagen, Denmark. For more information about Professor Ivie's talk go to this link:

<http://hum.ku.dk/kalender/2010/november/ivie/> In addition to the November lecture, Ivie will be leading a faculty seminar based on a set of his publications on rhetoric and war culture, and will be leading a graduate class on the subject of productive rhetorical criticism. His further responsibilities in this position will include visiting the University of Copenhagen each summer during his term of appointment to lecture and consult with faculty and students.

The University of Copenhagen is recognized as one of the world's leading universities. It was ranked this year as the 7th best university in Europe and the 40th best worldwide (http://news.ku.dk/all\_news/2010/2010.8/arwu2010/). The University of Copenhagen offers Europe's premier graduate program in rhetoric through its Department of Media, Cognition and Communication. For more information go to: (<http://mcc.ku.dk/> )