

Pezzullo's book on Toxic Tourism is the co-winner of the 2010 Jane Jacobs Urban Communication Book Award.

Phaedra Pezzullo's 2007 book Toxic Tourism: Rhetorics of Travel, Pollution, and Environmental Justice is the co-winner of the 2010 Jane Jacobs Urban Communication Book Award which recognizes an outstanding book that exhibits excellence in addressing issues of urban communication. It is named in honor of the late social activist and author of The Death and Life of Great American Cities. The book award brings with it a $500 prize. The award will be presented at the Annual Convention of the National Communication Association which will be held in San Francisco, California in November of 2010.